

Even though President Trump rescinded his order regarding the separation of children from their parents, there is no plan in place to help these families be reunited. There are major humanitarian issues that still need to be addressed. We will continue to make our voices heard until the decisions being made by President Trump and his administration are humane and merciful.

We will not stop our protest until every child is reunited with their family and laws are changed regarding the continued incarceration of children and families.

See below for something YOU can do on Saturday to support this effort!
